San. Board Offered $10,000 of City's $24,000

Year-Old Struggle Between Two Civic Bodies Reaches Compromise At Unofficial Meeting Wednesday

The Carmel Sanitary District has been offered $10,000 out of the state allocation of $24,000 that the city of Carmel has been sitting on like a hen with a specially fragile egg.

A compromise over the distribution of the state money will be presented at the Sanitary Board meeting Monday night. The deal was worked out at a meeting of representatives of the Sanitary Board, Keith Evans and Stanley Pedder, and board attorney Shelburn Robison, and of the entire city council less Andy Martin and Allen Knight (the latter is in a tender position since he is both a member of the city council and the Sanitary Board.)

Point at issue for over a year has been simple enough. The Sanitary Board thought it should get all of the state allocation, since the state gives preference to sanitary works. City has maintained that it should get the entire $24,000 since the fund is for cities, and could not be made available to the Sanitary District unless the city apply for it and turn it over to the district.

However, before the city can use the money for any other purpose (council has been dreaming wistful dreams of storm drains) it must have a certificate of adequacy from the state board that its sanitary system is up to scratch.

Well, it isn't.

But if the Sanitary Board would file a statement of its program for improvements and its five year plan for financing them out of tax money, then, in all probability the certificate of adequacy would be forthcoming and the city could have its money.

But the Sanitary Board wouldn't.

Why should it when the city proposed to hang onto the money, all of it?

Nobody was getting anywhere.

Then there was one of these little unofficial meeting of minds Wednesday night. The city made a "deal." The Sanitary District should have $10,000 of the $24,000 if it would submit for approval to the state board its five year plan for improvement and its means of financing it. After all, a lot of the same people are paying taxes both to the city and for sanitary improvements, so in part, it is taking money out of one pocket and putting it in the other. Whereas, with everybody at a stalemate, there wasn't any money at all to move from pocket to pocket.

There is a chance that when the proposal comes before the Sanitary Board it will be turned down as there are members on the board who want to hold out for all or nothing.

In which case the city can sit tight and win in the end. The Sanitary District has to make its improvements in any case. Once they are made, the city will have no trouble at all getting the certificate of adequacy, and the entire $24,000.

2 Blocks of 10th St. To Be Surfaced

Street work is to begin shortly on two blocks of Tenth street, east of San Carlos, Mayor Fred Godwin said yesterday. So at least a part of a job that has been hanging fire for over a year will get under way. The work is done on a contributary basis, property owners paying for materials, city furnishing labor. Eben Whittlesey, as far back as November, turned in the contributions from the area he was supposed to cover as collector, but property owners on the major portion of Tenth, west of San Carlos, are still holding out. The city officials said they would not improve a portion of a street, that the whole street would have to be included, but have now changed their policy.

Among the holdouts on West Tenth are the Gunnar Norbergs. Mrs. Norberg has led the opposition from the first on grounds that improvement would make a speedway out of the street, endangering the safety of the children and pedestrians.

NEW APPOINTMENTS

At the second meeting of the new board of directors of the Carmel Art Association Wednesday afternoon, the following appointments were made:

Standing committee on exhibitions: Abel Warshawsky, chairman, Leslie Emery, Frank Myers, Paul Mays, and Ellwood Graham. House committee: Howell Armor, chairman, Dr. Margaret Levick, Nora Grabill, Edda Heath. Publicity chairman, Gene McComas. An entertainment committee will be selected later.

Novel project for the house committee this year will be the provision of a suggestion box at the gallery, according to Curator Nelly Montague. Suggestions from both artists and the general public regarding the general program of the gallery exhibits will be welcomed.

CLOTHING DRIVE

We are going to have a clothing drive at Sunset School. Many schools in the United States have them.

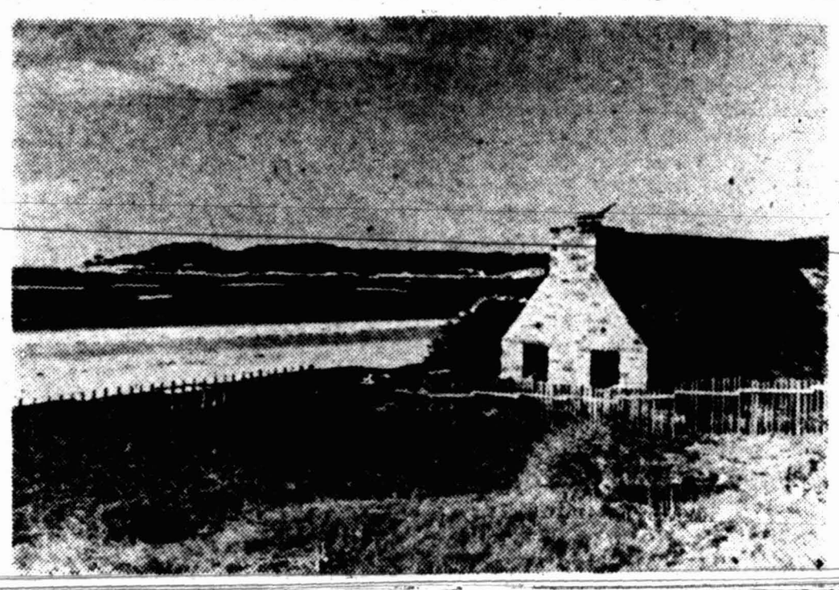
I know many people do not know where the clothes go. We send them to Save the Children Federation in San Francisco. Then they are sent to needy people all over the world.

We want dresses, shoes, sweaters and any other clothes that can be used both for children and grownups. When your child comes home and tells you that he is to take some clothes to school do not deny him the clothes. Just think of the needy people. — Tehani Cheatham, Sixth Grade.

SIGHTSEEING BUS

Plans to inaugurate a sightseeing bus service on the Peninsula within 60 days were announced yesterday by J. Harold Harper, manager of the Bay Rapid Transit Company. Notice of approval was received from the California Utilities Commission yesterday.

Bert's Hurt . . . . . So Are We



Perhaps you thought all the area beyond the fence in the left hand side of the picture was beach and dune, but it is a street, and it runs a block below Scenic, from Eighth Avenue to Ocean Avenue. Property owners along this unopened street became aware of the danger to them and to all who enjoy the beach if the city at some time be forced to open this street, when Edgar Haber and Andrew Robertson asked for access from Eighth or Del Mar to the lots you see in the foreground, where they intend to build two houses.

Col. Philip Scheenberger, one of the property owners in the area, this week started circulating a petition among the interested neighbors, making a "deal" with the city to surrender their residuary rights to half of Del Mar Avenue, if the city would abandon the street. This would place the entire strip of land allowed for the street under city ownership and would prohibit forever its use as a street.

City officials have indicated that they favor the plan, also that an unofficial agreement has been reached between Haber, Robertson and the city to give them access to their lots by way of an extension of Eighth Street.

Dear Wilma:

Emily Post might tell you that you should address a person correctly. Your "open letter" to me begins:

"Carmel Old Timer." Granted, though I live very much in the present. But you continue:

"One Time Mayor Until He Resigned in a Huff." I was two times Mayor, I didn't resign in a huff, and I was not Mayor when I resigned from the City Council. I was Fire Commissioner, and my decision to resign was made after several weeks of deliberation, because of a decline in my business coupled with a heavy loss in Forest Theater productions. Surely I had the right, after long years of civic service (entirely without pay, of course) to devote myself to my own affairs for a while. I had served nearly eight years on the Council, besides performing many other public services for three decades.

"Producer of the Carmel Shakespeare Festivals," your salutation continues. Granted, and proud of it. Regardless of the success or failure of any of these productions, they have given opportunity for self-expression and development to many hundreds of people and have brought into the lives of many young persons a living knowledge of the world's greatest poet and playwright, which should materially increase their joy in the realm of imagination and beauty.

"Perennial Hamlet," you call me. Perennial doesn't seem quite the word. I have acted in only two productions of Hamlet in my life, in 1926 and 1941, fifteen years apart.

"Member of the Carmel Planning Commission." Right!

"Dear Former Friend Bert." I hope this cancellation of your friendship for me does not include your family. Your daughter is a sweet and lovely girl and your husband is truly a gentleman, and until further notice from you I shall continue to greet them cordially when we happen to meet.

And now for the body of your letter. I must thank you for quoting correctly the statement I made at the latest meeting of the Planning Commission: "There is entirely too much emphasis placed on trees and not enough on view."

I am sure that many will agree with me, especially those who chose their home-sites here because of the gorgeous bay and the titanic headlands and the great Pacific Ocean, and who now see nothing but foliage. With the passing of years Carmel trees seem to have become sacrosanct. Even sick trees, half-dead trees, ugly trees, spindly trees, dangerous trees. . . . Mustn't touch!

I yield to no one in the love of beautiful trees — the magnificent old pines that hold their heads proudly in the sky; the young pines in their rich green robes; the kingly oaks with their trunks gray and wrinkled with age, but their heads superbly crowned with leaves and light, and the sweet young oaks in the soft yellow-greens of their spring fancies; sunrise over hill-horizons broken by the uplifted spears of far-off woods, or sunset through the tall pines against the ocean sky; the clean fragrance of the forest after rain; the sun-carved patterns on the turf under the trees—all these are very dear and wonderful to me, but there are other things that are lovely too. We are greatly blessed in Carmel. Where else can you find a beach like ours, or where a bay like the one held in the arms of Cypress Point and Lobos? And the great sea beyond, spreading out forever into the round West! And the brown-green foothills curving tier above tier to the snow-coronets of the mountains lifting to the sky! And the Carmel river singing softly to the sea, through the myriad colors and shapes of the valley! And the clouds, and the winds, and the sun, and the rain, and the white stars and the red stars and those that are yellow and blue. Other places have some of these, but we have them all, and we have them in a climate that strikes a happy mean between excessive heat and cold.

There isn't much we don't have, but some of it is obscured by screens of trees that are not always beautiful, and some that grow too close together for their right development, and some that are diseased or already near their end. And some are even dangerous, their roots exposed by washes and likely to crash in a storm. A wisely planned elimination of such trees throughout the village would

Occidental College Chorus Concert At Sunset Tonight

Seats are still available for the Occidental College Chorus concert at 8:30 o'clock tonight at Sunset School auditorium. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

The stage-full of young people, presented by the Carmel Lions Club, will sing the works of both classical and modern composers under direction of Howard S. Swan of the Occidental music department.

In charge of arrangements for the affair is Lloyd Weer, who explained that Dr. Remsen Bird of Carmel, retired Occidental College president, made it possible to bring the group here during its 1949 tour of the western states.

The chorus is made up of the combined men's and women's glee clubs, and will feature American folk-music as well as adaptations of compositions by foreign artists.

The glee clubs are in constant demand in the Los Angeles area, singing for schools, churches, clubs, hotels, radio broadcasts and various music festivals throughout the year.

Proceeds from their Carmel appearance will go into the Lions Club fund to pay for radiant heating at the high school swimming project now under construction.

STARS CLASH IN BOYS' CLUB BENEFIT GAME SATURDAY

With all the proceeds going toward the Boys' Club building fund, the Ricketts Sports and the Santa Barbara All-Americans will match basketball wizardry tomorrow evening at the high school gym. A 7 o'clock preliminary between Duke Dufur's Boys' Club quintet and Jim Muscutt's CYO squad will provide additional interesting basketball for the local fans.

The All-Americans are the top team in Santa Barbara and have made a habit of beating the widely publicized traveling teams which toy with most of the amateur teams. Made up of ex-college greats, the Santa Barbara club plays very sound basketball, and at the same time, put on a good show for the fans. Their intricate play patterns and deft passing provide 40 minutes of thoroughly enjoyable basketball for the fans. Ricketts Sports boasts such good performers as the peerless Ky Miyamoto, who seldom misses a set shot, and has mastered all the tricky passes and dribbles, Del Wermuth, lanky rebound artist, Dick Uzzell, former high school great, Howard Lockwood, another former high school star, Frank Timmins, a tip-in artist, and several Monterey City League stars. Ky has banded together a gang which is capable of extending the high class performers from Santa Barbara.

The 7 o'clock preliminary should be a spirited affair which should provide plenty of fireworks from the opening whistle. Both the Boys' Club and CYO have been playing fine ball all season and have been waiting for an opportunity to square off against each other. The CYO has taken the likes of the Holy Cross high school from Santa Cruz, the Valley All-Stars, and the Monterey Boys' Club, while the Carmel Boys' Club has whipped several Monterey City League teams, the New Monterey Boys' Club, and a fine Watsonville City League team.

Basketball fans can see some good basketball tomorrow night, and, at the same time, help the Carmel kids in their quest for a clubhouse.

PADRES-BREAKERS MEET AT PACIFIC GROVE TONIGHT

Badly needing a victory to stay in the running for the B division basketball crown, the sawed-off Padres square off against the Pacific Grove giants tonight at the Breaker gym. Giving away yards in height and handicapped by claustrophobia occasioned by the small Pacific Grove gym, the Padres appear in for a pretty rough evening at the hands of their most feared rivals. Pacific Grove has dropped only two games to high school teams this year. The very good Fremont High School, from Sunnyvale, being the only prep squad able to keep the Breakers in their place. Fremont defeated Pacific Grove, 41 to 30, and defeated Carmel by a 47-41 count, so, off comparative scores, the underdog Padres have a fighting chance against the towering Breakers. In their first meeting during the early part of December, the Pacific Grove lads took the Carmel boys apart by the overwhelming score of 35 to 23, but the Padres have come a long way since then and in recent games have been playing very sound basketball. If they can surmount the terrific height handicap, the locals could stage the season's biggest upset and turn back the Breakers.

Chuck Dawson's hustling lightweights, buoyed up by their victory over Gonzales last Friday night, are out to make it two straight when they tangle with the PG lights in the 7 o'clock preliminary fracas. The Padrecitos showed plenty of fight in downing the Spartans and are capable of giving the high-powered Wavelets a terrific tussle. Coach Chuck Dawson will probably start Bob Updike, Bob Burgess, Stewart Emery, Bill Daniels, and Henry Overin, but, off performance in recent games, Paul Artellan and Jim Thompson will make the starters hustle to keep their top spots. Paul and Jim have been playing some inspired basketball in the last few games and have been handy boys to have around when the going gets tough.

PADRES UPSET GONZALES IN BOTH TILTS

Garnering their first double win since the early season games with Hollister, the local prep basketball squads won both the lightweight and varsity games from the Gonzales Spartans last Friday night. Gonzales had dumped the locals in their first meeting and were favored to repeat the measure of the Red and Gray again, but a spirited band of determined Padres turned back the best Spartan threats and rightly earned the double victory.

The lightweight fray was a thriller from start to finish. There wasn't much scoring in the game, but what there was sure counted for a lot. The first quarter ended with the visitors in front, 3 to 2. Halftime score was 7 to 6, and the final count, Carmel 17, Gonzales 16. The little Spartans were in front, 16 to 14, with less than a minute to play, when Paul Artellan sneaked in for a two-pointer to knot the count. With 10 secons to play, Henry Overin tanked a free throw to ice the game for the Padrecitos. Little Paul Artellan provided the spark which drove the little Padres to their first league victory. Paul did a terrific job in gathering in the rebounds and his last minute field goal kept the locals in the ball game.

The varsity tilt showed an abrupt reversal in form on the part of the Carmel squad. Expected to roll over and play dead for the highly-touted valley club, the locals took the play away from the favorites and rolled to an easy 42-19 verdict. Showing exceptional play execution and putting on a tight defense, the Padres turned in their finest performance of the current season. Jim Hare and Steve Whitaker directed the Carmel attack like a pair of college guards and the shooting of Laugenour, Gargiulo, and Vandervort was way above average. Tom Bolin and Wes Breschini, Gonzales scoring favorites, were blanked by the aggressive defensive play of Whitaker and Hare. After the starters had damaged the Spartan defense for three quarters, the reserves took over for Carmel and continued the scoring onslaught. Walt Frey, Dick Weer, Denicio Narvaez, Lannie Doolittle, and Neils Reimers took over the Padre chores in the final quarter.

THIRD ANNUAL CARMEL BB TOURNEY MARCH 4-5

Anticipating even closer competition than was exhibited in the 1948 tournament, plans have been laid for this years tourney which will take place at the Carmel High School gym, starting Friday, March 4, and winding up around 10 p. m. on Saturday, March 5. With the San Joaquin valley fives unable to participate this year, more of the CCAL schools will have an opportunity of taking part in the tourney. Fremont (Sunnyvale), Gilroy, Monterey, Gonzales, Salinas, Santa Cruz, and Carmel are already signed up for this year's tournament and several other schools are being considered for the eighth team.

Last year's tourney, won by Monterey, was featured by exceedingly close games in both the consolation and championship brackets. The last four games in both brackets were decided by less

Lions Club Party So Good Everybody Wants Another

The Carmel Lions Club deserves a big cheer! And so do the people who turned out Saturday night to help make the Fashion Show contender for The Best Party of the Year. Unfortunately, with the banquet hall at the Mission Ranch fairly bursting at the seams, people had to be turned away. The crowd was definitely party minded, which added considerably to the success of the evening.

The Carmel merchants who donated their time and efforts can also take a bow. Seeing the styles available in our local shops brings clearly to mind that one need go no farther than the village to find a really smart outfit. Over 600 people watched Carmel's best looking models show everything from bathing suits to evening dresses, and even tiny two-year-old Edward Neroda carried off his part with great finesse.

Laugh after laugh piled up on the entertainment, which included Joe Gaston's hilarious impersonation of the hog-calling champ of Indiana, Floyd Smith as Madame Fifi in the Fashion Show, and the Gay Nineties Barber Shop Quartet, composed of Art Plaxton, Reed Freeman, Frank Putnam and Dr. William Coughlin, accompanied by Edward C. Hopkins. Roy Hillyer was a fine M. C.

Special guests Mayor Hugh Dormody of Monterey and Mayor Fred Godwin of Carmel, however, turned out to be unscheduled entertainers when they delighted the throng with their clowning over the drawing of prizes.

Art Holman's band provided dance music, and a buffet supper was served at midnight.

The models who graciously gave their time were Helen Prosser, Mrs. David Gergen, Willette Torras, Mrs. William Hess, Zareen Grant, Mrs. Ted Hare, Avis Hansen, Doris Hill, Jennefer Lloyd, Deborah Geering, Jean Wibby, Jerrie Nelson, Laurel Hildebrand, Kathie Winslow, Pat Trevett, Oran Stoddard, Yvonne Gardner, Mary Kastros, Nancy Brown, Mrs. Clyde Rayne, Shirley Wright, Gay Masten and Mrs. Ralph Bucan. Children modelling were Suzanne Ayer, Suzanne Shirley and Edward Neroda. The models were directed by Gail Coupe, and Mrs. Frederick Elstob was the able commentator for the show.

Models' accessories were provided by Eva Sorey, Village Shoe Tree, Guild Shop, Kramer's Woman's Shop and the N & B Florists; hair styles were by El Paseo Beauty Shop.

Shops participating were Balzer's, Carmel Kiddie Shop, Putnam & Raggett, Avis Smock Shop, Gail Coupe, Maxine's, Harriet Duncan, Gladys McCloud's Shop for Girls and Teens, Hour Glass, Cinderella, Lanz of Carmel, Carmel Dress Shop, Silver Thimble, Banbox and the Country Shop.

If, as the grapevine has it, the Lions Club is planning to make this an annual event, we certainly cast our vote for it. The party was not only one of the biggest, but one of the best Carmel has ever seen. Congratulations to the Lions and to Joe Hudder, hard-working chairman of the event.

Reporting on the Fashion Show at the regular Tuesday night meeting of the Lions Club, Mr. Hudder announced that the Fashion Show had netted about $1,000. The proceeds, as everyone should know, go into the fund to pay for heating equipment at the high school swimming pool.

Lorita Baker Vallely will be heard in her monthly Current Review Friday, February 11, at 2:30 p. m., in the Carmel Theater under the management of Alice Seckels. Throngs of people attended the last lecture and have spread the word of the brilliant and penetrating talk given by this gifted speaker.

Mrs. Vallely will discuss the problems and potentialities of South Africa, and discuss our new Congress and the new Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, in the light of America's importance in the world scene. She will discuss several of the new worth while books and books bearing on various trouble spots in the world.

Tickets for the lecture may be secured at the Box Office of the theater the afternoon of the lecture or at leading book stores.

Biggest Show On Earth . . . Almost, Boy Scout Circus

Boy Scout Week, February 6-12, marking the 39th anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America, will be celebrated Tuesday evening, February 8, at the Monterey high school gymnasium, when 17 local scout troops will present a ten-event, three ring circus. Included in the affair, for which tickets may be obtained from any scout, will be clowns, a Wild West show, chariot races, craft demonstrations, and a Court of Honor, according to Boyd Beall, chairman for the event.

Carmel troops participating will be Church of the Wayfarer Pack 107, American Legion Troop 86 and Ship 86, and Carmel Mission Holy Name Society Troop 32. Others taking part are troops from Monterey, Pacific Grove, Seaside, and Fort Ord. A circus band, composed of Monterey Union High School musicians, will be under the direction of C. E. Anderson.

Troops 86 and 32 will participate in chariot racing, communications demonstrations, and human signal towers. Pack 107 members will present pioneer and Indian stunts and "Worst Aid," a parody on first aid demonstrations. Other events include Skin the Snake, Seaside Lions Club Troop 108; pyramid building, Seaside Chamber of Commerce Troop 42; Indian hand and leg wrestling, Pacific Grove Latter Day Saints' Church Troop 48; life saving and first aid, Monterey Kiwanis Troop 2 and Pacific Grove Rotary Troop 90; ship drill, Carmel American Legion Troop 86; horse racing, Monterey Rotary Club Pack 38; and pioneering projects by Pacific Grove Troop 90, Carmel Troop 86, and Kiwanis Club Troop 2.

Festivities will conclude with a Court of Honor, at which scouts and senior scouts will receive recognition for advancements. Admission to the circus is free, but scout units are distributing invitations this week in order to receive credit toward attendance rewards.

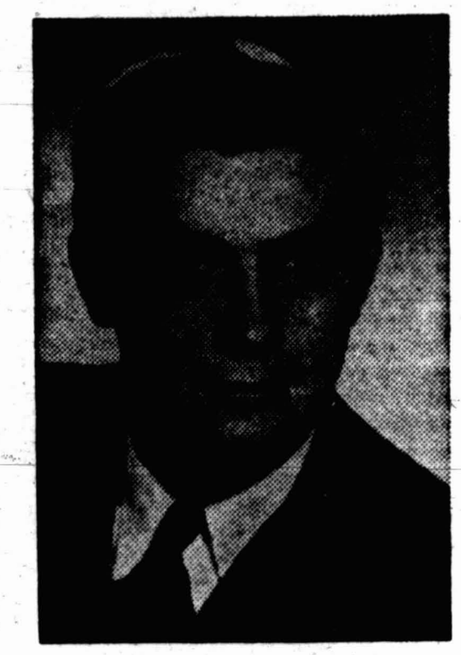
Plans Announced For Honoring Goethe's 200th Anniversary

At intervals during 1949 the local Rudolf Steiner Study Group will present lecturers and events in recognition of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Goethe, whom the group considers the forerunner and representative of the modern mind. The first event of this nature is a recital by Hans Pusch, actor from New York, who will read scenes from the George Madison Priest translation of Faust. Students of German literature will find in Mr. Pusch an artist equally at home in both the German and English language. He often reads a scene in both languages. He speaks English without accent, and he has an approach to speech work and acting which is unique and impressive.

This recital will be given at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, February 12, in room 11 at Sunset School. The public is cordially invited.

The attention of readers interested in Goethe and Rudolf Steiner is called to a few titles to be found in the Rudolf Steiner Library, located in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Graves, at Third and Dolores streets: Goethe's Theory of Knowledge by Rudolf Steiner (1897); Goethe's Standard of the Soul (Faust and the Fairy Tale of the Green Snake and the Beautiful Lily) by Rudolf Steiner (1902); Pure Colour by Merry and Schindler including Extracts from Gothe's Scientific Works. Reviewed in The Pine Cone May 28, 1948; Karma of Vocation in Connection with the Life of Goethe by Steiner.

Volumes in the Rudolf Steiner Library have come from personal collections of Halldis Stabell and Lita Bathen, well remembered Carmel women of the recent past. Mrs. Phyllis Midkiff, now living in Cummings, Mendocino County, California, devotedly built the library up to its present size. Books may be borrowed by paying a small rental fee.



Leslie Bennett, baritone soloist, will appear in Sunset School auditorium Friday evening, February 4, 8:30 p. m., with the Occidental College combined men's and women's Glee Clubs. Prize winner in the 1948 Atwater Kent auditions, he is one of California's promising young vocalists. The concert is sponsored by the Carmel Lions Club to raise funds for radiant heating at the Carmel High School swimming pool project.

AMBULANCE CALL

Mrs. Anna S. Gatton, San Carlos and Third, was admitted to the Peninsula Community hospital Saturday night after a heart attack at her home. Alerted at 10:20 by a telephone call from the Gatton home, police called Dr. J. B. McCarthy, who ordered her sent to the hospital by Red Cross ambulance after emergency treatment. She was discharged Sunday.

Aw, Shucks, No Sympathy For Cupid Has William James

California Highway Patrol officers had a pretty irate couple in their custody for a while late Saturday night. Their elopement to Reno had been stopped at Gilroy by William C. James of Carmel, who had nothing against eloping but simply wanted his car back.

While attending the Lions Club fashion show Saturday night, James and the young couple planned the Reno trip in James' car, the deprived citizen told police. Later in the evening the pair disappeared, and with them his automobile, he said. After his vow to file car theft charges, Carmel police sent out a teletype which resulted in the apprehension of Dwight B. Gabbert and Doris May in Gilroy. Highway patrol officers detained the couple until James arrived to claim his car and drive his friends back to Carmel.

Deputy District Attorney John Shephard listened to the whole story Monday morning and dismissed the case after James relented enough to admit that perhaps he had been a little unsympathetic of the impulsive pair.

Donations for the University Women's Rummage Sale, which opens today, have surpassed all expectations in variety and quality. Among some of the choice items are a flat-top table desk, a walnut bed with springs, a mohair davenport and chair, lighting fixtures and floor lamps. There is an excellent assortment of clothing for both children and adults, a good source of clothing to be sent to Europe, odd dishes and numerous other things.

The sale will continue through tomorrow and is being held in the new building at 343 Del Monte Avenue in Monterey, near the Railway Express office.

PHYLLIS MAKES A SPLASH

Phyllis Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jones, owners and managers of Beverly Terrace, recently had a page of rotogravure in the Sunday Boston Herald devoted to her skill. An enterprising photographer with an eye to form and action, did some very interesting action shots of diving, featuring Miss Jones and one of her classmates at Wellesley. Miss Jones, who used to instruct at the Pacific Grove pool and has won many cups and medals, is taking her Master's degree in physical education at Wellesley.

PENINSULA STAMP CLUB

The next meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Stamp Club will be held in the Sunset School Library at 7:30 p. m. on Monday, February 7, when Peter Ferrante will show and discuss his collection from different countries composed entirely of stamps with ships on them. New members are welcome, and those joining by the next meeting will be considered charter members.

When the club was organized, it was decided to sponsor a junior group, and plans for it are now complete. Mr. Ferrante, chairman of the committee, will meet with the junior organization on Saturday, February 12, at 2 p. m., in the Sunset School Library. Any grammar school children interested in collecting are invited to attend; high school boys and girls are accepted in the senior group.

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

Mrs. Marjorie McCausland's Kindergarten

The Weather—

God says "I'm going to make a cold wind"—so that is why we have frost.—Judy Leslie.

When the clouds get cool they drip and shiver and it makes rain.
—Anne Hagemeyer.

Clouds get full of water and they bump into each other and that makes it rain on us.
—Bill Coulon.

Discussing puppy on the playfield:

I wonder who his mother is? He must have a mother or else he wouldn't be a dog.—George Heath.

Who is Mr. Hull?

"He studies about the school."
—Jean Harrah.

"He rings all the big bells."
—George Heath.

"He helps the children and makes lots of money."
—James Pruit.

"He throws ashes out when the school is dusty."—Scott Forbes.

Mr. James Blee's Sixth Grade

The Carmel Junior Audubon Club has 17 members in the sixth and seventh grades. These members are: Cynthia Blum, Phyllis Burnette, Priscilla Clark, Alice Ferrante, Patty Finley, Paul Fratessa, Pat Grimshaw, Gretchen Herron, Sandra Kohner, Sarah McCloud, Lynn McMath, Tommy Petty, Howard Roloff, Donn Sipes, Sally Spurr, Judy Wallace, and Julie Work.

Alice Ferrante is president, Pat Finley is vice president, Phyllis Burnette is secretary and Howard Roloff is treasurer.

Our club had its first meeting on Sept. 28, 1948. We have had 15 meetings and five field trips. Mr. Blee, the sponsor of the club, has taken us on two field trips, Mr. Ballou has taken us on two and Miss Morrow has taken us on one. We have gone to Pt. Lobos, Jack's Peak and the mouth of the Carmel River.

The sixth and seventh grades of Sunset School were honored by a visitor on Friday, January 21. Mr. Burchheister, the vice president of the National Audubon Club, was our guest. He talked to us on conservation, which is the main aim of the Junior Audubon Club.
—Priscilla Clark.

We have a new boy in our class and his name is Benny Marrs. Benny started school in Carmel on January 10 after his arrival from San Jose, where he attended Horace Mann grammar school.

Benny was born in Sallisaw, Oklahoma, and lived there for six years. He is 12 years old and likes Sunset very much.
—Carole Goodrich.

In social studies this year we have been studying South America. So far we have done very little book work and have done more on our projects.

Our projects are topics like coffee, rubber, rivers, climate, products, animals, and other ones. Each person in our class has a certain topic. They have to write at least a four page report on their topic. All reports have to be in by the 28th of January.

Also for social studies this year we have been learning Spanish. So far we have learned 72 words in Spanish. These include how to count up to 20. We know how to say our clothing, colors and other words. We have had a lot of fun so far with our Spanish, and I hope we keep it up.
—Patricia Doolittle.

This year Mr. Blee's group has been on science trips at different times.

The first time we went down the hill in back of the school. We played a game on this trip. Mr. Blee names a plant or tree near by and as soon as the children see the object they sit down. We saw these birds on the trip: California jay, red tailed hawk, chickadee, bush-tit, and others.

Our second trip was not an outdoors trip because we went to the Pacific Grove Museum to look at the mounted birds and eggs. These are some of the different kinds of birds we saw: hawks, owls, hummingbirds, sparrows, woodpeckers, shore birds and goldfienchs.

This trip was under the supervision of Mr. Blee.

We have been on a trip lately. On this trip we went to the mouth of the Carmel River. On this trip we saw eight whistling swans, different kinds of ducks and coots.

We plan to take more trips this spring.

Each day we have 20 minutes for a science class. At this time we read from a science book. Then the next day we talk over the lesson.

I think everyone in the class has learned many things in nature.
—Phyllis Burnette.

Our Congressman Writes Home

By Ernest Bramblett

To me, a gratifying thing about being a member of the California congressional delegation is that members appear determined to work for the welfare of the state, regardless of partisan differences —especially in three instances.

One recent resolution offered would put the delegaiton on record as favoring the Reclamation Bureau over the Army Engineers in conserving California's water. After thorough discussion in open meeting, we decided there is a place for both here; that it would be a mistake to give blanket approval to any single program.

I deem this a wise decision. We in California are not interested in who does the job . . . we want it done! In my own district, the Reclamation Bureau is undertaking the badly-needed Santa Barbara project. Next essential might be the type the engineers could do most efficiently.

We also discussed the cutting off of old-age pension contributions by the federal government to this state. Payments have been held up because the Federal Security Agency has not yet approved the plan to carry out provisions of Proposition No. 4.

I don't feel we should be called on at this time to decide its merits. Our concern is in seeing that this state is not discriminated against in the mater of federal reimbursements. It has held them up, even though payments are being made to those eligible before the proposition became effective. New eligibles go on the payroll April 1. I say, let the government use that lapse of time to study the state plan and see if it qualifies under federal law. I am sure payments will continue to be made . . . they have so far.

The California delegation also will look into the veteran hospital situation in California. A congressional colleague of mine fears that curtailment of a veterans' administration construction program will be harmful to our constantly growing veteran population.

COUNTY FAIR DATES SET

The Monterey County Fair will open on Saturday, August 27, and run through Tuesday, August 30, it has been announced by J. F. van Loben Sels, president of the Fair Board, who stated that all the directors had been approached on the matter. This schedule has the approval of business people, as well as school officials, agricultural leaders in the county and the Centennial Committee. It is expected that the two overlapping days of the Fair and the Centennial will benefit both celebrations.

New student body officers were installed at a special assembly on Monday by outgoing president Elton Clark, who also made known his recommendations to Aram Tootelian, new head of the student government. Jim Hare, who took individual golf scoring honors last year in the CCAL "B" division, was presented with a trophy, and announcement was made of a CCAL tennis trophy received for Mat Schmutz and Lee Winslow, members of last year's graduating class.

Immediately following the student body meeting the group adjourned to separate class meetings for the election of second semester officers. Some of the balloting was almost as hotly contested as in the previous student body elections.

Chosen to lead the seniors during their last semester of high school were Kathie von Meier, president; Delfo Giglio, vice-president; Joyce Bannerman, secretary; and Ardith Morrisseau, treasurer. Outgoing senior officers are Dick Gargiulo, president; Floyd Adams, vice-president, and Laurel Hildebrand, secretary-treasurer. Miss Wright and Mr. Reyburn are senior advisers.

Heading the juniors for the coming months will be Jimmy Hare, president; Ken Kiley, vice-president; Jerry Yoakum, secretary; and Legare McNeill, treasurer. Eric Short, president; Frank Richey, vice-president; Eleanor Taggart, secretary, and Birney Adams, treasurer, ended their terms of office this week. Mrs. Down and Mr. Farr are faculty advisers to the junior class.

New sophomore officers include John Riebe, president; Bill Daniels, vice-president; Donna Douglas, secretary; and Diane Lewis, treasurer. They take the places of the old officers: Joe Diekemper, Niels Reimers, Barbara Horne, and Suzanne Smith. Sophomore advisers are Miss Larson and Mr. Miller.

Frosh will be headed by all boy officers, including Bob Updike, president; Walt Shaw, vice-president, and Lanny Doolittle, secretary-treasurer. Outgoing officers of the class of '52 include Allene Knight, Allene Petty, and Carol Timbers. Class advisers are Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Craig.

Eighth graders also chose all boys for second semester officers. They are David Smith, president; Peter Newell, vice-president; and Bob Laugenour, secretary-treasurer, taking over for Leslie Doolittle, president; Bob Laugenour, vice-president; Mary Alice Graves, secretary-treasurer; and Arleigh Jones, sergeant-at-arms. Mrs. Shepard and Mr. Kincaid advise the eighth grade.

The first meeting of the new student council was called on Monday afternoon in order to introduce new representatives and discuss retiring President Clark's recommendations. Representatives to the new council are Floyd Adams and Connie Melchior, seniors; Bill Albee and Ann Whittaker, juniors; Niels Reimers and Peggy Hammer, sophomores; Kurt von Meier and Joan Kempen, frosh; and Bruce Robison and Cynthia Coe, eighth grade.

Rehearsals for Jane Eyre, senior play to be presented on March 11, began on Monday night in Sunset Auditorium, under the direction of Mrs. Mariquita Brey, dramatics instructor. The cast will meet to rehearse three times a week for the next five weeks, while the technical staff will be kept busy painting scenery, gathering props, and making other arrangements.

You've probably seen CHS's driver education car being used in Carmel traffic lately. You wouldn't miss it. It's plainly labeled. Members of last semester's group are receiving their final traffic training as a part of the driving instruction program under Howard Byrne, instructor. The course has proved to be a success, judging from activities of the past semester's group, which have included collecting pictures and records of accidents, keeping notebooks of clippings, and working out a pinpoint map of the Peninsula. About 20 students are in the new group, which began work on Monday.

Girls' speedball is over for another season, the junior class coming out victorious for the second time this year. By winning the tournament the class of '50 takes the championship cup from the class of '49, who had held it for two years previously, and came close to winning it again. First and second rounds of play combined, the juniors, captained by Nancy Brown, won four games, lost one, and tied one. Second place winner was the senior team, with three wins, two losses, and one tie. The sophomores took third place, having won three games and lost three, and the frosh were last with only one win for five losses. Captaining the seniors was Georgann Bell, sophomore captain was Donna Douglas, and frosh co-captains were Carol Timbers and Allene Knight. Laurel Hildebrand managed speedball this season. Girls' after school volleyball will get under way in the near future, managed by Sue McCloud, as will badminton under Joan Sanders, tennis under Jennefer Lloyd, and ping pong under Nancy Page.

The mixed noontime volleyball tourney will be ended today with a game between the blue junior team, final winner, and a team of faculty volleyball stars. In the red league, first place winner was the senior team, with the juniors second and the sophomores and freshmen third and fourth respectively. Blue league winner was the junior team. The seniors came in second, with the sophs taking third and the frosh fourth. Winners in each league played each other on Tuesday, the blue juniors being final champs of the tournament and the blue seniors coming in second. The tournament, sponsored by the GAA, was played entirely during the noon hours, with nearly every able bodied student turning out to support his class.

HIT AND RUN

Linda Mulry, 6, daughter of a San Francisco salesman, was treated for superficial scratches and bruises at the Monterey Hospital late Friday afternoon, after a car in which she and her father, Lawrence Mulry, were riding overturned on Atherton Drive near Rio Road. Mulry, who gave his address as 984 Mission street, told police he was forced off the road by another car approaching on the wrong side of the highway. The driver of the second car did not stop to investigate, he said.

Children Start Clothing Drive With High Hopes

On February 15 Sunset School's big race will be on—a race to beat last year's record collection of clothing for the Save the Children Foundation. It's going to be a tough one, too, for last year Sunset collected 1,628 pounds of clothing, an average of five pounds per child! That average (the national is only one pound per child) brought them second highest place in the state and a commendation from the director of clothing drive for the nation, George F. Martin.

Mrs. Edna Lockwood, who handles Red Cross and welfare activities, will be in charge. She states that all types of clothing for children and adults, including shoes, handbags, hats, etc., are needed. Clothing should be clean and preferably, of course, in good repair, although work shops in San Francisco and Los Angeles are prepared to mend and sew worn garments.

"As everyone must realize, such clothing is greatly needed, and it is hoped that our community spirit will help these children to better their really extraordinary last year's record," Mrs. Lockwood said.

The drive will run from February 15 through February 28, and bundles may be left at the Sunset School office. In addition, "almost any school child you see on the street will be overjoyed to take your bundle to the school for you," Mrs. Lockwood added.

Do You Remember . . . ?

PARIS, 1910

By A. G. Warshawsky

Criticism was optional at the evening sketch class at Julian's and the instructor only visited the class once a week. The students near the model stand were seated very low, so as not to obstruct the view of their comrades, those towards the back being perched on very high stools.. The model's pose was changed every 25 minutes, and if a student wished to finish his study no time was to be lost. Compared with the day classes, these night sessions at Julian's were quiet, orderly affairs. Except for an occasional cry of "Fermez la porte!" no notice was taken of late arrivals. Very different was the impression of a newcomer arriving at a morning life class at Julian's, where the racket was continual, a veritable bedlam of shouting, singing in various languages, accompanied by imitations of barnyard sounds. It seemed a wonder that work of any kind could be accomplished under such conditions. The old clamoring of "Nouveau! Treat!" which I had first heard at the Art Students' League in New York, was as the bleat of the lamb compared with the roaring turmoil at Julian's when a newcomer was received into the academy. The novice was assailed on all sides, and only instant acquiescence on his part with all demands, or the interference of the "massier," or monitor, appeared to save him from destruction. Often two "nouveaux" would be made to engage in single combat. Stripped to the waist, with palettes as shields, and long paint laden brushes as weapons, they would whack away at each other until they were both covered with paint and too exhausted to fight on.

On one occasion a luckless newcomer, a big handsome Roumanian, with a curly, well trimmed beard, refused to pay attention to the clamor which beset him. Evil befell him. He was bustled into a corner by the mob, and held down while two students with scissors cut patches out of his whiskers. As a rule, however, the tradition of standing treat was gracefully submitted to by the novice, who, after class hours, would regale his fellow students at a nearby cafe with coffee and "bocks" of beer drunk to his health.

The "pension de famille," where we had dinner that evening, was situated in one of the old houses in the Rue Jacob, well known to the Anglo-Americans of the Left Bank. There I found the usual cosmopolitan gathering, the proprietress the only French person present. French, however, was the common idiom and was spoken with a variety of foreign accents. A young Polish woman, sitting opposite me, conversed with me in fluent English. She was a Sorbonne student, who gave French lessons to earn her livelihood. I have since found that in Paris most teachers of the native language are foreigners: Germans, Poles, Russians, seeming—at least in those days—to have cornered the market as instructors of French.

The dinner was excellent and entirely in the French tradition: soup was followed by fish, meat and vegetables, served separately, after which came the salade. For the first time I tasted rabbit, stewed in a delicious sauce, and found it an excellent dish.

Most of the boys at Julian's took their meals at various restaurants near the school, where prices were lower, though the food was not so good as at our pension. One franc and 25 centimes (then the equivalent of 25 cents) was the standard price of the popular Paris meal, which included wine, or beer, and coffee. By buying a book of meal tickets, the price was reduced by 15 centimes. The regulation tip was two sous. After dinner it was the custom for all except the very impoverished to go to a cafe and spend the evening there.

THIRD STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

Up in the living haze
Stand the buildings, stark and strange,
Charred with the poisons of people.
Dark bricks that died
When lifted from the elements
Are bare backs fastened
With the mucilage of earth.
These shapes shed long shadows
On humanity's hallways.

Blind eyes gaze skyward,
Fingerless paws stroke crumpled cheeks;
Gray are the creatures that move,
Yet lie motionless:
They, like the monuments around them,
Are dead, dead.
Their loud mumbles go unheard
As they sway in this place,
Awaiting death for life.

—Richard Taylor Masten.

RAIN IN THE PINES

Listening in dark to the soft dripping
Of rain in the pines, to the clear sound
Of crystal beads slipping
Down long, green needles to the ground;
Harkening to peace abroad in the night,
Slippered in silence, deft as a fawn
Moving through nets of rain too slight
To hold a dream until dawn;
So I shall sleep, and let the rain
Weave its cool crystals in a chain
To lie in quiet on my breast.

—Natalie Flohr.

SINEW AND SEA AND THE SHIFT THEREOF

An age agone, (perhaps when Hero dived and dared the Hellespont in his Aegean lock) the salty soul of me was lashed and gyved in sluggish stubborn bone upon this rock;
in endless refluence to grot and ground between the worlds, the silent innermost to penetrate, the final crashing sound to hear, I come to linger with my Host.

The seething water fathoms down below—
my fury defied—a vortex is:
a ghost aspume, a turgid vertigo,
a dirge resounding in the green abyss . . .
unspendable my thunder, without ban,
Oblivious to the willful fall of Man.

—Mary Caluori.

Have You Read . . . ?

By C. Edward Graves

The other day Miss Elizabeth Niles, librarian of the Harrison Memorial Library, called to my attention a very interesting book about books. The title of this book is misleading and unless the contents had been recommended to me, I should probably have missed it. Mind on the Wing is the somewhat enigmatic title which seems more appropriate to a book on psychology than one on book collecting. The author is Herbert Faulkner West, professor of Comparative Literature at Dartmouth College. The sub-title found on the title page, A Book for Readers and Collectors, gives a more accurate description of the real nature of the book.

A previous book by Professor West, Modern Book Collecting for the Impecunious Amateur, reveals his field of interest. The books that he talks about are not so much rare first editions suited to fat pocketbooks, but ordinary everyday editions intended to be read rather than put away in a glass display case. As he says in his preface: "The presence of books in a man's house, books that he actually reads and that are not supplied by the yard through an interior decorator, reveals a healthy state of personal and even national well-being."

The first chapter on the general subject of reading and collecting is followed by a series of chapters about books on special subjects. The variety of these subjects reveals the catholicity of Professor West's tastes. Two chapters in particular appealed to this reviewer because of a common interest in the subjects of nature and mountaineering. He gives as good a resume of the books by outstanding nature writers as I have ever seen. The following sentence quoted from a letter written to the author by Henry Beston describes very well the value of this type of literature. "Good writing on Nature is a bridge of the soul's health over an abyss, leading us again to where our temporal lives are exalted by the timeless scene, enriching our days with the beauty and mystery of earth, and strengthening our hands toward the reality which is our heritage."

Starting with Izaak Walton's The Compleat Angler, published in 1653, he takes us through Gilbert White's Natural History of Selborne to the more modern writing of Richard Jefferies, William Henry Hudson, Henry Williamson and a number of other English nature writers, followed by the Americans, Henry David Thoreau, John Muir, John Burroughs and a number of other minor writers. It is perhaps in the pleasure of discovery of some of these comparatively unknown writers that the worth of a book of this kind lies. Members of the Audubon Society will be interested in his comments, not only on the great work of John James Audubon himself but on many other bird books, some of them very well written but little known.

Local members of the Sierra Club and other mountaineers will find his chapter on mountaineering books very illuminating. He begins with the early mountaineering classic, Conrad Gessner's On the Admiration of Mountains, first published in 1543 and reprinted by the Grabhorn Press in 1937. The writing of this book is generally considered to be the beginning of the modern interest in mountains. The recent success of James Ramsey Ullman's The White Tower, in which the mountain itself is the hero ,is an indication of how this interest has snow-balled into a considerable popularity. It is not necessary to be a mountaineer in order to enjoy this body of literature. In fact, Professor West himself has done practically no climbing. He says: "The next best thing to climbing mountains, my own epic ascent having been that of Mount Washington in New Hampshire, 6,290 feet, is reading of great climbs. Mountaineering books offer a fine field for the collector. It will take many happy months, even years, to assemble a really good collection of mountain literature, but it can be

The Time Has Come . .

By Kippy Stuart

Let's not waste any more time over past garden glories. The lessons we have learned during the late unpleasantness, are valuable. I have elected myself a committee of one to look on the bright side of garden-things; just a Pollyanna . . . me. But there is much brightness to look upon. I have made a survey of plant life that can withstand black frost on this Peninsula and here are the sturdy plants and shrubs that we can now plant and be safe.

The dianthus family, of which there are over 120 species, can stand all sorts of cold. Those most familiar to us are sweet william, clove pinks and carnations. All these are standing up straight and delivering flowers. (Excuse me, not the sweet william. He is living but not in bloom yet.) Petunias, pansies, and stock are undisturbed by the cold. Oh, some of these plants, in badly exposed areas, may look droopy, but give them a chance and away they will go blooming all over the place. My stock is full of color and has bloomed right through the cold weather. Jubilee jem, the dwarf corn flower (or bachelor button), is thriving even in flats, which is a test of magnitude.

In the perennial field we have lost many varieties. Our eugenias make me weep bitter tears, for most of them are definitely gone. We are not here to weep, rather to tabulate plants that came through with eclat. Veronica, that sturdy, low shrub, is pristine and is even blooming. Not a sign of distress. Veronica is a natural to plant beneath pine trees where it will thrive without resentment of the pitch in the soil. Veronica belongs to the ironweed family, hence its sturdiness.

Correa, the low, bushy plant that fills itself with tiny pink bells, has survived nobly. Correa is excellent to plant in borders for the medium sized shrub. Pentstemon is still with us and what a valuable plant this is to keep color in the garden at odd moments when everything else has gone to sleep. Rhododendron, camellia, azalea and daphne have laughed at the frost, and this is fortunate, as these plants come in the high cost bracket.

In the tall shrubs used for wind breaks and hedges, the leptospermum family has given good account of itself. The one best known in this group is the familiar tea-tree shrub, used in Australia for reclamation of loose, shifting sand. The tea-tree has stood the test of coastal freeze in this region. Others are the toyon, our noble California Christmas-berry tree, also the native bay tree.

Pittosporums have fallen apart in spots, but several varieties can be planted with no fear of frost-loss. Pittosporum tobira, the shrub with the perfume-scented white flowers, was untroubled by frost; Pittosporum crassifolium, shrub with the gray-green goliage is still working as an excellent windbreak. I regret to announce that Pittosporum undulatum, fell flat on its face. Other sturdy shrubs are: elaeagnus, myoporum, bamboo, honeysuckle and solanum jasminoides (the potato vine) are vines to plant when vines are indicated. Passion flower is no longer with us; and bougainville has had a terrific shock. Guess what stood the frost and chuckled? Why, our weeds, of course, and aren't they pretty?

most rewarding."

Local book collectors will be interested in a chapter entitled: The Strange Case of Henry Miller. Whatever people may think about this author and artist who lives at Big Sur, everyone agrees that he is a most controversial figure. The fact that Professor West devotes a chapter of 23 pages to his books and pamphlets is an indication of how he has grown in public interest. Collectors are not so much concerned with his literary or moral reputation as they are in capturing rare specimens of his writing. After listing samples of this kind, Professor West concludes: "To collectors Miller offers a fascinating chase and one well worth pursuing."

Other chapters in the book deal with the author's collection of Robert Frost and of Henry L. Mencken. A chapter on Some Great Books on Travel and Exploration will appeal to many local globe-trotters and another on The Literature of War should be of interest to the military element of our population, both active and retired. He concludes the book with a chapter entitled One Hundred Favorite Books ,meaning the favorites in his own collection. This is an indoor sport that every book-lover has indulged in from time to time. It is always interesting to compare notes on one's own private interests with those of an authority who is important enough to have his preferences expressed in print.

Denny-Watrous Bring Hamlet Company To Sunset Auditorium

The Margaret Webster Shakespeare Company, which is on its first transcontinental tour, will be brought to the Sunset School Auditorium by the Denny-Watrous management on Saturday night, February 26. Shakespeare's Hamlet will be given by a professional company of New York actors whom Miss Webster has selected from her many Broadway productions. Carol Goodner, Joseph Holland and Alfred Ryder head the cast.

Carol Goodner recently played in the Broadway showings of The Man Who Came to Dinner, Blithe Spirit, and Deep Are the Roots, and before that played in the Margaret Webster production of Hamlet with Maurice Evans. Joseph Holland last appeared on Broadway with Katherine Cornell in Antony and Cleopatra. Alfred Ryder played Ibsen's Ghosts with Eva La Galliene last season. All of the company have been in many of the Margaret Wheeler Shakespeare Broadway productions.

MRS. CRESSON HOSPITALIZED

Mrs. Juliette Cresson was taken to the Peninsula Community Hospital early Tuesday morning by Red Cross ambulance after she suffered a broken hip in a fall at her home at Tenth and Lincoln. She will be hospitalized for several weeks.

Water works were simple in the early days of history and the water jar was a familiar sight in many lands. But as people multiplied and cities grew, jars gave way to pipes and the pipe lines of today are doing a bigger job than ever.

Modern pipe lines must convey greater volumes of water at higher pressures, they must stand increased loadings, and must be adapted to a wider range of service conditions—the result of the growth of populations, extensions of service areas, and heavier use of water per capita.

Maintaining a water system is a much more complicated and expensive affair than it was in early times and engineers must study population movements and community requirements constantly to be prepared to meet all needs before they arise.

Water companies are up against the problem of rising costs too, even as you and I. The storing and distribution of water, as well as alterations and extensions of systems, cost more today than at any time since the early Egyptian maidens carried their graceful water jars upon their pretty heads.

Woman's Club Speaker

A general meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club will be held at the Woman's Club House, San Carlos at Ninth street, on Monday, February 7, at 2 p. m., and will be limited to members and their guests.

Speaker for the day will be Kathryn Turney Garten, whose perceptive book reviews combine unusual warmth and flavor with highly original character sketches. Miss Garten, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, has lectured from coast to coast for 20 years, and several members of the club have heard her lively talks at Detroit Town Hall.

Carmel Woman's Club

About 150 members attended the membership tea of the Carmel Woman's Club Monday afternoon and heard Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, president, welcome the new members, which have numbered approximately 90 during the past year.

Mrs. Johnson announced that since the membership had so increased, it will be necessary to enforce the by-law which requires members to show their cards upon arrival at the door. She also mentioned a by-law concerning the attendance of guests, and reminded the group of the benefit dessert card party to be held at the club house on February 18.

The president read a letter from the artist, Ferdinand Burgdorff, wherein he offers a painting of Point Lobos to be raffled for the benefit of the building fund; the picture may be seen at the Burgdorff studio.

Mrs. Johnson gave credit to each and every member for her help on the new building, and particularly to Mrs. Saxton Pope, chairman of the building committee. As a token of appreciation of Mrs. Pope's work, she was presented with a life membership.

Mrs. Pope gave a detailed financial report of the work involved, humorously deprecating the myriad difficulties encountered by her committee, whose members are Mrs. J. O. Handley, Mrs. Raymond Smith, Mrs. Alton Walker, Miss Amy Campbell, and Mrs. Johnson, ex-officio. Credit was also given to the architect and the contractors, as well as the "male auxiliary" of husbands and brothers who pitched in on the most menial jobs with willing co-operation.

Mrs. Pope introduced Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, chairman of the landscape committee, who spoke of plans for the future, saying that perhaps it was just as well the landscaping had not preceded the cold weather.

Mrs. Alton Walker then read a report made by Mrs. Alfred Matthews, in charge of gifts on the building project, who was unable to be present.

Mrs. Pope stated in her report that she was presenting to the members the 150 little shovels which had been purchased for the ground breaking ceremonies and which had not been used because of the inclement weather. She urged the members to use the shovels to "dig into dresser drawers at home for unused clothing for the future thrift sale, to dig into their gardens for the flower show, and into their hearts to open their purses."

Mrs. F. E. Naftzger and her committee did a beautiful job of serving hot tea and biscuits to the large crowd. Perhaps they were inspired by the lovely tea table which had been decorated with heather by Mrs. William Eklund.

Marquards At Arrowhead

Peggy and Milton Marquard, with Peggy and Michael, braved a sandstorm last weekend to drive to Arrowhead Springs for the California Real Estate Association convention. Peggy, who was installed as the women's chairman for Northern California, gave a talk on the Carmel Valley to the convention.

Audubon Field Trip

Los Banos State Game Refuge has been selected by the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society as the locale for its February field trip. Members and other bird students from the Monterey region will meet at the corner of Highway No. 1 and Fremont street, Monterey, at 6 a. m., Sunday, February 13, where transportation will be arranged for those without cars. Advice has been received that the Sandhill Cranes are feeding in the fields near Los Banos, and there are many species of geese on the refuge, in addition to many other kinds of birds.

Carmel Term Paper Gets A

Mrs. Curly Wettengel, who is visiting her son, Phil, a freshman at the University of Oklahoma, writes that the thermometer is hovering around the zero mark and also includes the following:

"Phil got a straight A on his term paper. The instructor seemed to enjoy it a lot. He told Phil he didn't know whether he gave him the grade because it was good or because it was such an unusual place."

The term paper, needless to say, was written about Carmel for an economics class. Phil gathered the material while here on his Christmas vacation.

UNESCO Visitor

In honor of Charles Thomson, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of cultural relations and liaison officer with UNESCO, Dr. and Mrs. Remsen Bird entertained at a dinner party last week. Guests for the evening were Mrs. Vera Shepard, Miss Barbara O'Neill, Dan Totheroh and Martin Flavin.

Mr. Thomson has been attending conferences in San Francisco and Los Angeles in association with Mrs. Henry Potter Russell, whose guest he was while visiting here.

Women Voters Meeting

The Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters will hold a general meeting on February 23 in Sunset School cafeteria. The program will include the report on the study of health conditions in Monterey county made during the past two months by the group headed by Mrs. Frances Ballard and Mrs. Ferdinand Haasis. The study has included the laws, health facilities and sanitary arrangements in effect in the county. There will also be films shown by Miss Naomi Hall from the county health office.

Wayfarer Circle

Completing the study of the book, China, Twilight or Dawn, Mrs. Walter Kreisler read excerpts from the last two chapters at the February meeting of the Wayfarer Circle at the social room in the church on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. G. B. Henderson, chairman, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Ada McGee gave the devotions. Mrs. J. W. Paterson, membership chairman, reported the names of leaders for the eight districts who will promote acquaintance among the women of the congregation and welcome newcomers into the organization.

The leaders are Mrs. Harry Hilbert, Mrs. Floyd Harber, Mrs. E. I. J. Dunlap, Mrs. Andrew Del Monte, Mrs. Ethel Woods, Mrs. Floyd Smith, Mrs. Bernice Kell, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach; Miss E. H. Swenson and Miss Matilda Weber, Monterey and Pacific Grove. Following the meeting a social half-hour was enjoyed, with tea and cookies served by Mrs. Ola Love and her committee, Mrs. Lesla Dixon and Mrs. Carrie Hamman. Mrs. Edith Catlin served at the table.

Navy Club Reopening

Next Tuesday the officers' club at the Naval Air Station will reopen, serving dinner nightly, except on Monday, and dancing will be resumed on Saturday nights from 8 to 12. The Sunday night buffets will be continued.

Review Of The Brereton Concert

BY EBEN WHITTLESEY

Appearing under the auspices of B. Franklin Dixon and Alice Seckels, Robert Brereton, pianist, delighted a responsive audience in Sunset Auditorium on Friday evening. This 26-year-old artist, who has magnificently surmounted the obstacle of blindness, showed great progress in poise, technique and maturity of style since his appearance here three years ago. In the interim he has studied at the Juilliard School in New York, and demonstrated, in his work with leading orchestras and before discriminating audiences, the power and promise of his gifts.

The program opened with a rather difficult Brahms group which was negotiated with care and clarity, rather than with brilliance. The Capriccio in B minor, Opus 76, however, was played with the light ,easy fingering and whimsical freshness which became ever more apparent as the evening progressed. Even in the complex music of Brahmns, played as it were, on a cold piano, one was struck with Mr. Brereton's technical facility and the assurance of his very flat-fingered execution.

In the succeeding Chopin group the artist, unwilling, apparently, to pamper himself for a moment, opened with the great Sonata in B flat minor, Opus 35. This work, with its monumental funeral march in the third movement, offers not only a challenge in problems of execution, but seems to me to require a considerable maturity in the artist for most effective interpretation. The first movement, while skilfully played, was not always clear. In the second movement, slow passages were handled with great finesse, and there was more clarity of style throughout. The funeral march was given a rather subdued, restrained reading, very tender but without the intensity of grief and finality which can be found in the music. The last movement was given with an easy fluid execution which was striking, but one felt that the real climax of the composition was not fully pointed up.

A Chopin Nocture followed, and the group ended with the Chopin Scherzo in B flat minor in which the artist outshone all that had gone before. His interpretation was spirited, his runs left you tingling. The dramatic emphasis and assurance carried conviction without bombast.

After the intermission came the moderns, the first of which was Granados' The Maiden and the Nightingale, with its warm simple melody exploited to the full. El Puerto, by Albeniz, was smoothly played with plenty of color, and without the jerky style which some artists consider necessary in Spanish music.

In the latter half of the program Mr. Brereton seemed completely at home with his material and his audience, conveying a feeling of enjoyment and zest which was as much a part of the total effect as was his excellent technique. He managed to make the Prokofieff Sonata No. 3 seem thoroughly intelligible, with plenty of power but no harshness. The pedaling was excellent and the reading never confusing. The formal program ended with Debussy's Pour Le Piano, which was perhaps the high point of the evening. It was given a sparkling rendition with fine color and phrasing. The theme was developed in a steady and integrated manner.

Four encores rewarded an audience that would not let the artist go. Two Chopin etudes, including the familiar C sharp minor, the Schubert impromptu in A flat, and Mozart's Rondeau a la Turk came in response to the enthusiastic applause. In addition to a very clear and accurate execution and a fine sense of timing, Mr. Brereton showed throughout a flair for the melodic line and a developing power which gives promise for the future.

Charles Ketzell To Discuss Failure Of Atomic Control

Why Atomic Control Failed will be discussed by Charles P. Ketzell, of the University of California, in the Sunset School Auditorium, this Saturday night. This is the third of five lectures on atomic energy, arranged for the Adult Education program of the Carmel public schools.

Right after the war's end, the United States offered to surrender all its atomic secrets, if the world would adopt an adequate program of international control. But the Russians objected to the plan offered. Mr. Ketzell will explain the United States plan, the Russian plan and the basis for disagreement. He will review the present impasse and look into the future.

Ever since Mr. Ketzell wrote his Master's thesis on atomic control problems, he has been recognized as one of the best informed Californians on the subject and has been much in demand as a speaker before business, women's and adult education groups. Last summer he spent in Europe studying the Marshall Plan and atomic control problems. At present he is assisting Prof. Peter H. Odegard, chairman of the political science department, who is consultaant to the Atomic Energy Commission.

The lecture will start at 8 p. m. and be followed by a question period. Zenas L. Potter will introduce the speaker. Admission is free.

This is a diesel ...a modern locomotive that means better service to you.

Leaders of two unions think it's a feather-bed ...a "make work" grab that means less service to you.

● Leaders of unions representing railroad engineers and firemen seek to force railroads to add extra, needless men on diesel locomotives. This is sheer waste —a "make-work" program which would mean fewer improvements and higher costs—for YOU!

Railroads use modern diesel locomotives because they are one of the means of giving faster, better service to you.

Two men compose the crew of a diesel. They occupy a clean, comfortable cab at the front. The engineer handles the throttle. The fireman sits and watches the track ahead. With no coal to shovel, he has practically nothing else to do.

No Benefit To You

Now the leaders of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen want to use the diesel locomotive as a means of forcing a feather-bedding scheme on the railroads. The extra men they propose to add to the diesel crews are not needed. There is no work for them.

The union leaders are fighting among themselves about which union should furnish these extra, needless men. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers have even threatened a strike. You may not be interested in this dispute of these two unions, but you would be vitally concerned if these groups succeed in putting through this feather-bedding scheme, because it would mean a slowing up of the improvement program of the railroads—of which the diesel is the outstanding symbol.

Diesel crews are among the highest paid railroad employes—real aristocrats of labor! Their pay is high by any standard. Granting of these demands, therefore, would mean that the railroads would be paying out millions in unearned wages to those in the very highest pay brackets.

We'd Like To Spend This Money On You

You know how much the diesel has meant to you in increased speed, comfort and convenience. The railroads have many more of them on order for even greater improvement in service to you. But needless drains of money, such as this present demand of the unions for needless men on diesels, reduce the ability of the railroads to spend money on better service for you.

Proud as the railroads are of the diesel, it is only a small part of their improvement program. Since the War, literally billions of dollars have been spent on improvement of tracks and stations, on new passenger and freight cars, as well as on diesel locomotives, and on the many other less conspicuous details of railroading that contribute to improved service.

Feather-Bedding Means Less Service To You

But brazen feather-bedding schemes like the one now proposed would, if successful, divert large sums of money from our present improvement programs. Even worse, they make improvements like the diesel worthless, by making the cost of their operation prohibitive.

These demands are against YOUR interests —as well as those of the railroads. They are schemes to "make work". Neither you nor the railroads should be forced to pay such a penalty for progress.

That's why the railroads are resisting these "make work" demands to the last ditch—and why they are telling you about them.

Hearts and flowers are in the air again, and now's the time to send those bright little messages of sentiment—valentines. WURZMANN TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE in Monterey can supply you with everything from the funny to the sweet and sentimental. Plain or frilly, small or large, you will find just what you want in this complete selection of Valentine messages. And there's also stationery for the occasion if you want to write your own greetings or if you're in search of an extra something for somebody special on your list. Be sure to stop in for your Valentines at WURZMANN TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE, 459 Alvarado in Monterey. The phone number is 8567.

Here's news for lovers of the out-of-doors, or anyone else who appreciates comfort combined with quality. The HARRIET DUNCAN SHOP has just received a shipment of White Stag jeans — the kind so especially popular with teen-agers. Sanforized and bar tacked for extra wear, they come in blue and copper denim. To go with the copper jeans there's a matching rider jacket that's as cute as it can be. White Stag jeans are the thing you'll want to relax in and keep your legs warm, so hurry and lay in a good supply while they last—teen-agers particularly. The HARRIET DUNCAN SHOP is on Lincoln and Sixth, you know.

The latest in smart and casual accessories is the drawstring pouch bag with gay plaid top to be found at KRAMER'S SHOP FOR WOMEN. This oh, so roomy bag is one of those wonderful-to-have numbers which will hold just about everything you can imagine without being a bit bulky. The Tartan top comes in a variety of colorful plaids; the bottom is of pigskin, and the whole thing is cloth lined. Two side pockets with outside fastening make twice as handy these English imported bags, priced from $13.95. KRAMER'S, on Ocean Avenue next to the library, also has just received a new shipment of calf imports, and will soon have in more of the very popular Corde bags.

For a real breath of springtime, FLOR DE MONTEREY is the place to go. Potted plants and greenhouse flowers, not affected by the cold, provide color and more color. You can take home blossoms of the bright and beautiful King Alfred daffodils, the big yellow variety, just in this week. There are also the many colored snapdragons, gladiolus, China lilies and, of course, roses and carnations. Or why not a few potted plants, harbingers of spring which will last on through the year? The place is FLOR DE MONTEREY, on Franklin street in Monterey.

Navy's The Thing for the coming season, and the new shorty coats at the CINDERELLA SHOP definitely carry out the theme. A large selection of these ever-popular coats comes in hip length down to finger tip length, featuring shades of red, white, and navy, as well as a striking new shade—champagne. All these are colors which will go with just about everything in your wardrobe plus the new combinations of navy. The shorties are softly tailored in both the straight boxy style or the full-er back which looks so well with the current fashions. Double breasted or single, whatever you like, you'll be able to find it in the showing at the CINDERELLA SHOP. The shorty coats are priced from $39.95 to $69.95, and a great many of them are styled by Adele of California, known by everyone for high quality clothing. The CINDERELLA SHOP is on Ocean Avenue, so drop in and have a look at these very stylish shorties.

And while we're on the subject of springtime, what about spring cleaning? Couldn't your house stand a bit of rejuvenation in the way of a new coat of paint? Treasure Tone Paints from the ARTIST'S PALETTE will do the trick. These beautiful paints come in a wide range of exclusive colors, and can be had in dull, semi-glossy, or very glossy finish. They're made for both interior and exterior decorating, so you'll want to get busy right away by calling at the ARTIST'S PALETTE on Sixth between Doleres and San Carlos.

Before you attempt to reduce or gain weight your body needs a cleansing diet. MONTEREY HEALTH FOOD CENTER has natural herbs and laxatives with vegetable and fruit base or in bulk for such diets. At the CENTER, around the corner from the First National Bank in Monterey, Victoria instructs in special diets.

Spic and span is the word for MAC'S POULTRY SHOP, where you can have killed on order young tom turkeys for your Sunday dinner or any time you're planning an extra-special meal. Of course there are the usual roasters, fryers, fricassee and broilers to be had, as well as freshly killed rabbits and fresh ranch eggs. The phone number of MAC'S, which is on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth streets, is 1492-J.

You'll be delighted when you see Candy Cord, the crispy new spring yardage at PUTNAM AND RAGGETT. It's the corded rayon your pet outfit last spring was made of, and this year it's back again—more popular than ever. Now's the time to whip up a spring suit or two or three out of this smart fabric, which can be had with its corded strips in every color combination, red, gray, blue, or brown with white, aqua or green with black, and gray with ping. Thirty-six inches wide, it's only $1.95 a yard at PUTNAM AND RAGGETT, so you needn't look despairingly at your pocketbook. And Candy Cord is as versatile as they come. Don't stop with just spring suits. It will look equally smart in a trim tailored dress, a crispy not-so-tailored outfit, and in all sorts of playclothes, including even shorts and bathing suits. Whisk right down to PUTNAM AND RAGGETT on Ocean Avenue and get in on the best selection before it's too late.

H. A. Burgers Honored

On Sunday afternoon Mrs. C. E. Hathaway entertained at a tea in her San Carlos home, where about 60 friends, army and civilian, gathered to bid a reluctant farewell to Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Burgers, who are leaving Carmel.

For the occasion Mrs. Hathaway's living room was adorned with large sprays of magnolia leaves, which made an interesting complement for the dominant pink and green floral patterns on upholstery.

The tea table, which held an unusual and beautiful still life of fruit and vegetables with a large, fan-like background of magnolia leaves, was presided over by Mrs. Louise Dexter, Miss Alice Seckels, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, Mrs. Elizabeth Goodrich and Mrs. Vera Shepard.

Women's Democratic Club

The Women's Democratic Club of Carmel will honor Mrs. Esther Murray of Los Angeles at a luncheon to be held in La Ribera Hotel on Friday, February 11, at 12 o'clock. Mrs. Murray is vice chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee and, as guest speaker for the luncheon, will talk on Democratic Politics in California.

The club wishes to extend a special invitation to hear this interesting speaker to those who have indicated in a recent canvass that they are interested in Democratic activities in this area.

Men, too, are urged to attend and, if they desire, may have a special table.

Luncheon is $1.35, and reservations, which close February 9, may be had by telephoning Mrs. Harriet Alden, 585-R, or by mail to Box 129.

Mrs. Murray will speak immediately after the noon luncheon, and those wishing to attend Mrs. Vallely's lecture will be free to do so.

Cascarone Ball

[illegible] week for the Monterey Civic Club's El Baile De Los Cascarones, their annual charity ball, which will be held at the Old Hotel Del Monte on Friday, February 18. As usual guests will be costumed, some of them in heirloom finery handed down from mother to daughter since the early Spanish days.

Silliman Addresses GOP Women

Under the leadership of their president, Mrs. Karl W. Hisgen, nearly two hundred Republican women met Tuesday, February 1, in the Women's Civic Club, Pacific Grove.

Mrs. Hisgen, who has recently been elected Congressional Director of the Eleventh Congressional District, formulated the plans for 1949. A bit of humor was enjoyed when Mrs. Hisgen read the announcement of the arrival of James Bradley Hatlo, "The Answer to the Republican Party's Prayers," and the "Number One Young Republican."

Assemblyman James W. Silliman spoke on "grass roots" philosophy; government statistics and his bill for governmental reorganization. Silliman answered questions regarding the causes of the "recent unpleasantness"; wording of amendments and Proposition 4.

President Hisgen then announced that plans are under way for the second annual luncheon to be held in May.

At that time, an historical booklet which Mrs. Hisgen has been preparing for the Centennial year will be distributed. This book will be illustrated and will be a handbook of the Republican party in the United States as well as in California.

Tribute was paid to the memory of two departed members: Mrs. Maud Irwin and Mrs. William Freehoff. Mrs. Helena Power of Helena, Montana, sister of Mrs. Maud Irwin, was a guest at the tea.

Mrs. Harry B. Gantt displayed a map of the voting precincts of Carmel. Mrs. Gantt is in charge of a plan in which these precincts will be canvassed for the purpose of ascertaining how many voters did not vote in the November election; how many will be able to vote in the next election; and what changes the people wish to incorporate in local, state and federal government.

The following precinct captains have been appointed to carry out this survey through block captains appointed by them:

Precinct 3, Mrs. Bruce Spencer; precinct 5, Mrs. Shirley Watson; precinct 4, Miss Vivian Ogden; precinct 7, Mrs. Ella Harris; precinct 8, Mrs. Rhea Dively; precinct 9, Mrs. Rowen Ratier; precinct 10, Mrs. R. L. Avery; precinct 11, Mrs. Nora Law; Point Lobos No. 1, Mrs. P. A. Mix, Carmel Valley; Mrs. Alfred S. Balsam, Highlands; Point Lobos No. 2, Mrs. Ashley E. Stetson, south; Mrs. John W. Sherwood, north; Point Lobos No. 3, Mrs. Helen Clark Park; Carmel Woods, Mrs. Carl R. Nuetzel; Pebble Beach, Mrs. R. M. Perkins.

This meeting evinced a high point of interest and enthusiasm. It was unanimously agreed to continue monthly meetings. The next one is scheduled for March 8, at 2 p. m., in Sunset School, Carmel.

Ferros Back From Mexico

A house-slightly-divided on the subject, the Paco Ferros are back in Carmel after three months of sight-seeing in Mexico. The climate they liked, the hotels they found only fair. The country was unbelievably beautiful, and the food bad. But they did enjoy their trip, Paco's first to that country. They were enchanted by San Miguel de Allende, the location of the A. I. Art School, and met there the famous Mexican painter, Siqueros. Naturally, they didn't leave Mexico without a call on Zoe Kernick and the Pat Walls who have places on Lake Chapala.

NOEL SULLIVAN SOLOIST

Those who attended organ vespers at the Church of the Wayfarer on Wednesday afternoon were privileged to hear a program of music played by Noel Sullivan with taste, artistic understanding and emotional depth. Mr. Sullivan's selections were two Bach melodies, a Handel melody, the Andante from Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, The Song Without Words, Debussy's Reverie and Pastorale, some traditional Jewish songs and the Coronation March by Meyerbeer.

Edwin A. Austin

Edwin A. Austin, 57, Carmel resident for the past 20 years, died Monday at his home at Camino Real and Seventh, after an illness of several months.

Born in San Francisco in 1892, Austin first came to the Peninsula in 1915, where he headed the orchestra at Del Monte Lodge until 1920. Since 1929 he had been engaged in advertising.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Laura H. Austin; a son, Edwin L., and a daughter, Mary Austin, all of Carmel; five sisters, Mrs. Etta Sibley, Mrs. Flora Heintz, both of San Francisco, Mrs. Carrie McDonald of Vallejo, Mrs. Gladys George of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Christine Willy of Berkeley.

Rosary was said Tuesday evening at the Mission Mortuary, followed by services and a requiem mass Wednesday morning at Carmel Mission. Burial was in the Holy Cross Cemetery, San Francisco.

than three points. Monterey edged Pacific Grove, 30 to 29, to win the top spot, while Gustine edged Patterson, 47 to 46, to cop the consolation round.

Pacific Grove will be unable to participate this year as they will be playing the A division winner on Friday, March 4. Pacific Grove won the 1946 tourney and was just barely nosed out last year. However, the team which defeated the Breakers twice this year will be on hand to challenge the rest of the trophy seekers. This team is Fremont of Sunnyvale which is a power in the Santa Clara Valley League. With Salinas, Monterey, and Santa Cruz vieing for tournament honors, there should be plenty of fireworks in the 1949 Carmel basketball fiesta.

Carmel P. T. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel P. T. A. will be held on Tuesday, February 8, in the cafeteria of Sunset School at 3:00 o'clock.

Miss Eleanor Crouch, librarian and in charge of audio-visual aids in both the high school and Sunset, will be in charge of the first part of the meeting to explain how these aids are used in connection with regular teaching methods. She will be assisted by Miss Enid Larsen, head of the biology department of the high school, who will describe the equipment and materials employed, and by Miss Myra Mylar, fourth grade teacher at Sunset, who will show how the equipment is used. There will be a display of this equipment in the cafeteria.

Arthur Hull, Sunset principal, urges all parents to phone the school or write a note to be brought to school before the meeting about any questions they wish to have discussed.

The second part of the program will be in charge of Mrs. Walter Nielsen, Founders Day chairman. After a brief tribute to those who formed the P. T. A., tea will be served by Mrs. Robert Jones and Mrs. Charles Leavitt, hospitality chairmen.

Mexico Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weaver have just returned from a month's motor trip through Mexico, where they managed in a short time to observe just about every aspect of life there. Stopping in Monterrey, Mexico City, Cuernavaca and Tasco, they went as far south as Acapulco and drove through the more primitive and isolated sections such as Saltillo. They enjoyed particularly being able to get off the beaten path but found everything of interest to them wherever they traveled. They saw the bullfights and did a lot of fishing, both at Acapulco, where they each caught a 100 pound sailfish, and in the swamp lands and canals around La Encantada. From their enthusiastic reports of the trip, we gather they'll be back there as soon as they have a chance.

Lions Club Meeting

The Tuesday night meeting of the Carmel Lions Club heard Dr. Remsen Bird, former president of Occidental College, speak about the College Glee Club, whose concert here tonight, in charge of Lloyd Weer, is sponsored by the Lions.

Joe Hudder, chairman for the Fashion Show, reported that the Show netted about $1,000.

Dr. Charles N. Pearson, president, announced that on March 1 all three Peninsula Lions Clubs will meet at the Mission Ranch, when Lions District Governor W. K. Davis will speak.

Stuart Mitchell, superintendent of Carmel schools, addressed the group concerning the student driver program, now compulsory in California schools, and its anticipated effect on safety in traffic problems. Mr. Mitchell also reported on the progress of the new Dolores street school and mentioned some of the remarkable innovations to be included in the building and equipment.

The club had as its guests for the evening Edgar Leslie and Art Wise.

Van Meter Heads Flower Show

Dr. A. L. Van Meter, Carmel, today accepted the chairmanship of the Monterey County Fair Floricultural Show for August 27, 28, 29 and 30, according to J. F. van Loben Sels, president of the fair. Mrs. Frank Wilkerson, president of the Monterey Peninsula Garden Club, was named vice chairman.

Dr. Van Meter's first official duty was to secure the services of Stuart Fletcher, manager of the Oakland Spring Garden Show, to come to the Monterey County Fair grounds on February 18 to advise with the committee on changes in plans in the flower show building and for the changes in the premium list. In the evening Mr. Fletcher will address the Monterey Peninsula Garden Club at their regular meeting at the Women's Club in Pacific Grove.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God" (I Corinthians 2:11). This is the Golden Text for the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, February 6. The subject is "Spirit."

Included in the sermon are the following citations:

The Bible: "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them because they art spiritually discerned" (I Corinthians 2:14).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: Knowing the Science of creation, in which all is Mind and its ideas, Jesus rebuked the material thought of his fellow-countrymen: 'Ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the time?' How much more should we seek to apprehend the spiritual ideas of God, than to dwell on the objects of sense! To discern the rhythm of Spirit and to be holy, thought must be purely spiritual" (p. 509).

not lessen the beauty of the town, but on the contrary would heighten that beauty and would give us more sunlight and views of the sea and hills.

"Next summer when you come around to The Pine Cone for editorial support for your not too good Shakespeare Festival you can just go look at the view." I never came to you for editorial support. You very kindly, of your own volition, gave the Festival that support, of which I was deeply appreciative. You even urged everyone to attend the performances—which was a bit strange if you thought them not so good. You also printed cheerfully all our advance notices, though of course that is customary where paid advertising is carried. And you also printed not one, but several reviews—friendly and well-written articles by excellent critics. They seemed to like this Festival. And for all these things I thank you, and I now thank you again.

But what has the Shakespeare Festival to do with the question of trees? Wouldn't it be better to discuss the cutting or not cutting of certain trees on the merits of that alone, and argue the matter in a friendly way, without resorting to war? That would be the way of democracy.

And as for your denial of editorial support in the future because I voiced an opinion contrary to yours, let me say that I consider it not only my right, but my duty to give my opinion in such matters honestly and openly at meetings of the Planning Commission, and it is also my right as an American citizen to speak freely and without intimidation on public matters. Your threats do no appal me.

"I will not be afraid of death and bane
Till Birnam forest come to Dunsinane!"

Perhaps I should have ignored your "not too good" phrase; but it bothers me not for myself so much as for the many fine people who collaborated with me in the productions—men and women of talent and experience in designing, building, painting, costume, make-up, lighting, dancing, stage-management, direction and acting. Play production is not a one-man affair. One may write a book, or paint a picture, or compose a piece of music; but one man can't put on a play. Some twenty years ago I checked the program files and estimated that there had been over three thousand in the productions up to that time. Perhaps five thousand by now! The Forest Theater is a community enterprise.

You close your letter by signing yourself as one "firmly established in the democratic principle of trees for the many as opposed to view for the few." What's to stop the many from seeing the views as well as the trees? If there weren't so many gloomy cypresses on San Antonio street, for instance, people passing up and down could glimpse the ocean and the sky, and there would still be plenty of trees left.

I don't think many of the older residents will believe me guilty of wanting to destroy the beauty of Carmel. They know that it was during my first term as Mayor that the center planting on Ocean Avenue was established in place of what looked like a used-car lot. They know that I discovered in the then uninhabited woods and underbrush the lovely site of our out-door theater and secured it for the use of the villagers, and named it the Forest Theater (not the Ocean Theater or the Bay Theater.) They know that when Mrs. Heron and I planned the Seven Arts Building we left a great open court for trees and vines, and planted other handsome trees between the sidewalks and the curbs. We have more trees than any other business building in Carmel. But newcomers may not know who was responsible for these things, and reading your "open letter" they might think I was out to destroy the charm of the village.

Well, maybe I've given forty years to the Forest Theater, to civic service, to the Seven Arts—to poetry, music, and drama, to bookshops and art galleries, to fine building and landscape gardening and tree growing, to friends and strangers, to love of people and love of nature—all in preparation for the total destruction of beauty.

—Bert Heron.

Dear Bert:

Sorry I dragged Shakespeare into the discussion. It certainly befogs the issue. Besides, The Pine Cone will continue to support the Shakespeare Festival, regardless of what indiscretions you might make before the planning commission, because we believe with you that the Festival is good for the town.

But my essential statement, my stand on trees vs. view, remains the same.

I believe that your comment before the planning commission has given aid and comfort to a lot of people who will now be encouraged to harry the city council to remove city trees to the detriment of the over-all appearance of the town so that they will be able to enjoy a marine outlook without getting out of their bedroom slippers.

The trees I am referring to are pines, not cypresses.

The cypresses need trimming and shaping all along Scenic and on San Antonio, a fact I pointed out to the planning commission chairman not two weeks ago. But they should be trimmed, trained and thinned with the improving of their appearance in mind and not for the view of the property owners of the neighborhood. If just one tree, pine or cypress, is removed, topped, trimmed or shaped for the benefit of someone's view, half the town will have a similar claim. Once establish a precedent that view is an acceptable reason for tampering with city trees and our forest will become a memory.

—Wilma Cook.

Garrott Speaker At Writers' Club

Hal Garrott, the drama and music critic, will be the guest speaker at Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte's current literature group next Tuesday evening, February 8, in room 11 of Sunset School. Visitors are welcome to sit around the conference table and hear him discuss his writing and publishing experiences over a long period of years. Not many of his adult readers know that he is the author of several highly imaginative books for children, which are to be found on the shelves of the Harrison Memorial Library. He will tell his listeners next Tuesday how he produced these juveniles.
